

Students' Society Moots Constitutional Changes

First Of Semi-Annual Meetings To Be Held In Ballroom Today At Five O'clock — Major Issues Include Changes In Method Of Nominating Officials—Financial Report To Be Read—One Hundred Needed For Quorum — Deane Nesbitt, President Of Student Council, Evinces Faith In Loyalty Of Student Body

IMPORTANT amendments to the Constitution in connection with the nomination of officers will form one of the major issues to be discussed at the first of the semi-annual meetings of the Students' society to be held at five o'clock this afternoon in the Ballroom of the Union. Another item which is considered to be of great general interest is the presentation of the financial report for the past year in which is embodied an exact account of the disposition of the student finances. The Council hopes that all those students who are worried as to where their seventeen dollars goes will avail themselves of this opportunity to find out.

Other additions to the agenda will include business brought forward by the Executive. The exact nature of this part of the proceedings has not been revealed to the public, and the president, Deane Nesbitt, showed great reticence when approached upon the matter, mentioning that the best way to find out would be to come to the meeting.

Quorum Necessary

This is a real challenge to the student apathy which pessimists mournfully declare is rampant at McGill. It is felt by the whole Students' Council that the Executive feels confident that the student body will respond to this proffered chance to show an interest in the governing of campus affairs, and will turn out in sufficient numbers to form a quorum. This means that at least one hundred students are expected.

Suggested Changes

The changes to be mooted are the result of a close survey of the situation by a special committee appointed last session to look into the situation. The subjects which this committee, composed of prominent campus personalities, were to consider have already been made public through the medium of the press. Owing to the multiplicity of acclamations in the past in important official positions the committee has been led to suggest a possible remedy to this condition of affairs without mentioning whether it be deplorable or otherwise.

The obvious alternative of a nominating committee to avoid election by acclamation was deemed unsuitable as this would necessitate the nomination of officers by ballot.

Operatic Production Now In Full Swing

The McGill Choral and Operatic Society has swung into the final lap in its preparations for choosing the cast in the production "Yeomen of the Guard" which is to be presented on Dec. 13-17th inclusive. This is a change from the original plan which called for the opening performance on Nov. 29th.

The majority of the principal characters have already been chosen by the executive and the cast, although still incomplete, is listed below.

Sir Richard Cholmondeley—Harrison Jones.
Colonel Fairfax—Bob Calder.
Sergeant Meryll—Stan Allen.
Jack Point—Bob Freeman.
Wilfred Shadbot—Jack Waud.
Elsie Maynard—Mary Friedman.
Phoebe Meryll—Dorothy MacKay.
Dame Caruthers—Adele Lortie.

The cast of the operetta will include about one hundred people and will feature the largest male chorus ever known in the annals of McGill productions.

Ralph Linton, business manager of the society is in great need of volunteers to aid with the production. Scenery builders and painters are in special demand.

Anyone turning out will be given work which will in no way conflict with lectures or study periods.

Practices will be held every Tuesday and Thursday and all interested are cordially invited to attend.

Several Dignitaries Honored By Bishop's University

An honorary degree will be conferred upon the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec at a special convocation to be held tomorrow afternoon at the University of Bishop's College, Lennoxville. Other notable persons who will be similarly honoured will include Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in London, Hon. J. E. Perrault and many similar dignitaries.

The installation of the Honorable Chief Justice R. A. E. Greenfield as chancellor of the University in succession to F. E. Meredith.

Old Wayside Hostels Provided Historical Centres In England

Medieval Subject Considered By Professor Turner In His Speech

TIPPING ORIGINATED

Roman Church Sponsored And Owned Some Of Early Inns

"The Story of the Inn is the Story of England," said Prof. P. J. Turner, of the School of Architecture, who addressed the Montreal Branch of the Royal Empire Society last night on the subject, "The Romance of the Old English Inn."

It is a mistake, in the opinion of Prof. Turner to confuse the Inn with any drinking-place or low public-house. The inn of old England was more than this. It fulfilled the purpose of affording lodging and entertainment, and tried to give the traveler a "home away from home." In the old inns we find by English waysides, we can breathe the atmosphere which made history, and although many of the tales told about the inns are largely fictions of over-ambitious landlords, yet a large number of them are true, and innumerable inns have harbored famous historical figures in hours, frequently of the greatest peril.

Early Origin

Many of the inns go back as far as the 14th century. At that time many of them belonged to the Church, being regarded as a supplement to the work carried on by the Church. This was the case with the "Fox and Goose," in Suffolk, which has remained the property of the Church to this day. We find examples of these inns all over England, particularly in the Cathedral towns. Here the inns were erected in order to accommodate the pilgrims coming to the cathedrals, and even the names such as "The Pilgrim" have survived through six centuries.

In the 15th century, the inns became the gathering place for social and commercial meetings of all sorts. They furnished board and lodging to those who travelled the roads and continued in this role reaching their heyday during the coaching days of the 18th century.

Wealth of Household Objects

The inns as we find them today almost invariably possess a wealth of carved woodwork, mostly oak, and the style of these dating back to the Plantagenet period is usually a Gothic one. Before the advent of improved glazing the windows were generally narrow, and in the restoration which one sees today allowance must be made

Glee Club Rehearse Number Of Ballads

Hope To Have Professional Conductor In Short Time

The McGill Glee Club held its second gathering of the year at 7:30 o'clock last night in the Grill Room of the Union and rehearsed a number of popular ballads.

The meeting was well attended and Louis Theobald who did the conducting was quite enthusiastic about this year's prospects. In a little speech after the rehearsal he welcomed those present and stressed the necessity of prompt and regular attendance.

"Everything points to a very successful season," he commented, "and all that is necessary is your continued co-operation."

"Keep in the middle of the Road" and "To all you Ladies now on Land" were among the songs which were practised by the chorus. H. S. Simpson was at the piano.

Theobald also mentioned the fact that the club is in need of a number of second tenors. Meetings are held every Tuesday at 7:30 o'clock sharp, and the club hopes to have a professional conductor within a short time if continued success warrants it. Any student interested is cordially invited to attend.

Principal To Attend New York Gathering

Sir Arthur Currie has accepted an invitation to represent McGill at a conference sponsored by New York University to be held in New York on November 15-17. The conference of leading representatives of institutions of higher learning will discuss the general topic "The Obligation of Universities in the Social Order."

While in New York the principal will also attend a meeting of the trustees of the Carnegie Foundation on November 16.

Musical Association Meeting To Discuss Plans For Concert

Important plans for the forthcoming concert of the Musical Association will be discussed this afternoon at five o'clock at a meeting in the Union reading room. The date of the concert is scheduled for Wednesday, December 7th.

The Band, the orchestra, the Glee Club and the Choral and Operatic Society will all take part. Several soloist performers will also render selections. Frank Prand will play the flute and Reuben Selme the trombone solos. There are to be many other solos which have not yet been arranged. In addition there will be a violin quartette made up of Lapointe, Goodriot, McNamee and Widman.

The election of honorary officers and patrons for the concert will be held. It is an important executive meeting. All the presidents of the various musical organizations are asked to be present. Tentative plans for other activities will be discussed.

Anglin Chosen As Arts '33 President

Allison Walsh Elected Permanent Secretary Of Class

PLAN ACTIVE YEAR

Owen Vice-President, Henderson Treasurer, Of Seniors

Jim Anglin was elected President of the class of Arts '33 at a meeting in the Smoking Room of the Arts Building yesterday. Other officers chosen were George Owen as Vice-President, Rolly Henderson as Treasurer, and Allison Walsh as Secretary. As the class of '33 graduates this year, this last office is a permanent one.

An entertainment committee composed of Wally Erskine, Murray Wright and Con Harrington was chosen. It was decided to postpone the election of a class historian and valedictorian to a later date.

Finances Sound

The meeting was opened by the retiring President, Bill Carmichael, who called upon Treasurer Rolly Henderson to read the financial report of the class for last year. The revenues consisted of a collection from members of the class, while the principal disbursement consisted of a sum of $6.00 for the class picture. The report showed a surplus of 80 cents which the executive feel constitutes a record in class finances at McGill.

Following this the elections took place with Anglin, George Black, Carmichael and Walsh being nominated for President, Owen and Carmichael for Vice-President, Harrington, Wil-

Hi-Y Movement To Meet Tomorrow

J. M. C. Duckworth And Murray Brooks Will Address Meeting

Students from all faculties and years who are graduates of the Hi-Y Movement are to be entertained at a supper meeting in Strathcona Hall at 8:15 tomorrow evening. This re-union is held under the auspices of the S.C.M. and is primarily to introduce to the Hi-Y men the aim and basis of the Student Christian Movement as well as its activities around the campus.

The meeting will be addressed by J. M. C. Duckworth, of the N.D.G. Y.M.C.A. and Murray Brooks, new secretary of the Movement in McGill and formerly with the Association in India. The programme will also include other forms of entertainment. The committee in charge expects a large turnout of Hi-Y men as this meeting, it is felt, is of the utmost import to all concerned.

Ottawa Conference Subject Of Address

Professor P. Corbett, Dean of the Faculty of Law, will be the speaker at a meeting of the League For Social Reconstruction to be held tonight at eight o'clock, in Strathcona Hall. Dean Corbett's subject will be "The Ottawa Conference."

There will be a general discussion at the conclusion of the address on matters arising from the subject. The League For Social Reconstruction extends a welcome to all students. A good attendance is expected at this interesting lecture.

Character Of Maori Race Preserved By Reliance On Legend

Early Settlements In New Zealand Traced By Dean Carrington

ORIGINATE IN INDIA

Native Race Rises From Primitive To Important Position

The strong belief in myths and legends, handed down by traditions, and their great effect on the Maori race in New Zealand, formed the keynote of the speech of Dean Carrington of Bishop's College to the St. James Literary Society last night. So successful have the Maori been in perpetuating their national or tribal heritage solely by tradition that we are led to question, said the speaker, our own faith in books.

Speaking on "Myths and Legends of the Maoris," Dean Carrington, who was born and has lived for some time in New Zealand, traced the growth of the Maori race from its early primitive stage to its present social and political prominence in the Antipodean world. The Maori are accepted as equal to the whites, intermarry, and one of their members rose to the post of acting Prime Minister of New Zealand.

Early Migration

A branch of the Polynesian race diffused throughout the Pacific, the early Maori considered "the world was one great ocean." At a time when Europe was restricted by the narrow medieval spirit, the Maori had built sturdy canoes and gained considerable knowledge of navigation. Making many voyages of exploration, "they may have reached Vancouver or South America."

Scientific research on the matter has been inadequate as yet, but, according to the speaker, "the Maori seem to have been ultimately of the Hindu Race" and came gradually from India. An early Maori settlement was made in New Zealand in 650 A.D. but the bulk of the colonists came over 700 years later.

Genealogical Tables

To this day the Maori proudly boasts of his descent from one of these emigrants of 1350, tracing back his ancestry, without a break from very early periods. Details of the voyage to New Zealand in five ships have been handed down from father to son. Unaided by written records, memory and tradition have preserved the racial and tribal characteristics of the Maori.

There is no doubt that the early Maori were savage and even cannibalistic. But, even then, they had developed certain arts such as poetry and singing "and the most beautiful wood carving that any race has ever had."

Religious Beliefs

Religious beliefs of the Maori tend to divide the original deity of the world into the force of darkness and of light. From these have been produced the earth and the sky, and the seven minor deities. Tinged with

Concert Orchestra Rehearses Tonight

Second Meeting To Be Held In Union Ballroom At Eight O'clock

The newly organized McGill Concert Orchestra will hold its second rehearsal of the season tonight at 8 p.m. in the Ball Room of the Union. Last week there was a large turnout of student musicians, but the M.G.C.O. executive state that they are desirous of obtaining several more players of stringed instruments. The response in the wind instrument section was so enthusiastic that it was found necessary to make a choice in certain cases.

The Orchestra has already commenced working on the music for the Choral and Operatic Society's forthcoming production of Gilbert and Sullivan's, "Yeomen of the Guard." The selections are typical of Sullivan, and in the opinion of the Executive, offer numerous opportunities to illustrate the qualities of a good concert orchestra.

The Overture, they consider as possibly the most exquisite of all Gilbert and Sullivan's Operas, and are gratified that the Orchestra has already grasped the underlying spirit of the thing.

Tonight, Mr. Cooper, will also start rehearsals for the Musical Association's Annual Concert. In view of these important developments, a full attendance is requested. It does not matter whether the musicians to be were at the previous rehearsal, or not.

McGill Band Will Accompany Rugby Team To Kingston

The decision of the McGill band to take the whole of their personnel to Kingston for the Queen's game has been prompted by the enthusiasm of the members, evinced at the practice held in the Union Ballroom yesterday. There was a very large turnout and encouraged by these good signs, bandmaster Potts and Mr. Norris have been busy rehearsing the band in the innovations of new marches and certain popular tunes, which are expected to appeal to their audiences.

The Cheer-leaders, Sturdee, McGee and Springle will also accompany the band to Kingston and appeal to the student body to support the efforts of the Rugby team at Queen's. There will be practices for the band in the Union on Thursday and Friday, and on the latter day there will be a drill in the stadium. All members will entrain for Kingston at the Bonaventure Station at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Quong To Deal With Manchuria Situation

Chinese Honour Student To Address Foreign Affairs Club

CHANGE IN LOCALE

Meeting At 4720 Grosvenor Avenue At 8.15 Tonight

Sidney Quong, Fourth Year Honour student in Economics, will be the speaker at the second meeting of the Foreign Affairs Club, which will take place tonight at 8.15, at 4720 Grosvenor Avenue, Westmount. The Sino-Japanese dispute, which seems to be on its way to making one of the most important chapters in Twentieth Century history, will be the subject of the talk.

The Japanese have continued their machinations in spite of the protestations of the League of Nations in Geneva. Consequently they have succeeded in focusing the eyes of the whole world upon their action in Manchuria. Events of the past months have proven that all nations are concerned in the affairs of the Far East, so that today it has definitely become a question of vital interest to everyone, and not least to Canadians.

Point of View

Sidney Quong, as a Chinese, will present the club with a paper which will show the question from the point of view of his countrymen, and his views should prove of the greatest interest to those students who are motivated in the discussion of affairs abroad.

This meeting will represent an innovation in the annals of the club. Contrary to previous custom, the meeting will no longer be held in the Strathcona Hall, but in the home of the president, Henry Schafhausen. In future meetings will be held at the homes of the members, since it is believed by the department that this will add a certain degree of warmth and companionship, an element which cannot be overestimated in a club where the free discussion of conflicting ideas depends largely on the amount of good fellowship existing between the members.

Extend Privilege

It has been tentatively decided upon prior to a ratification by a general meeting, to extend the privileges of membership to partial and extension students desirous of participating in this branch of campus activity. These students are therefore urged to justify the confidence of the executive in making this concession by displaying in an active way their interest.

The members attending tonight's meeting are reminded that a fee of 15 cents will be charged to cover the expense of refreshments which will be served in the course of the meeting.

Second Year Arts Hold First Meeting

At the first meeting of the Arts Sophomore class held yesterday for the purpose of holding class elections, Arnold Johnson was again elected president. The other members of the executive are: Vice President, Austen Dettmers; Secretary, Arthur Nandekivell; Treasurer, John McLeish.

There was a very large attendance despite the fact that the meeting was held at one o'clock. The executive state that it is probable there will be a large turnout of the class at the Arts Undergraduate Smoker to be held on Thursday, October 27th. The members of the class intend to take part in class debates and also to test their skill against debaters from other years.

Labor Problem In Civilized Countries Comparatively New

Dr. Kiang Addressed Labor Club On "Work In China"

COMMUNISM SPREADS

Programs To Be Adopted For Future Meetings Of Club Discussed

"Labor is as old as the human race, but the labor problem is something which is comparatively new in China as well as in all other civilized countries." This statement was made by Dr. Kiang Kang-Hu, head of the department of Oriental Studies, during his address on "Work and the Worker in China," at the opening meeting of the Labor Club held last night in the Strathcona Hall.

To understand the present labor conditions in China, Dr. Kiang said, it would be necessary to make a review of the earlier situations there, so that we may see more exactly just how the changes came about. There was never any caste system in China; however, society was divided into four distinct classes. In the order of their importance and official recognition they are: the intellectuals; the farmers, which included both the land-owners and the tenants; the artisan class, comprising the artists as well as the manual workers; and finally, the merchants.

Property Equally Divided

At least 85 per cent of the laboring class were farm-workers. Significant is the fact that the property of each land-owner was always divided equally among his sons after his death, so that in the course of time large property owners inevitably became small ones. This naturally led to a closer relationship between owner and tenant, and therefore China is avoiding to a great extent the friction between the capitalist and laborer, a matter which in western countries are contending with at the present time.

China, in the past generation, has been making rapid industrial progress, having installed many large and modern factories and mills in her larger cities, and this has led to the growth of a new but important labor group, the industrial workers. Originally, a strike in China was used as a weapon against the local authorities, and the laborers usually obtained their demands. Today, however, the strike has assumed the same form as our own.

Little Class Antagonism

Although there is comparatively little class antagonism in China, there are certainly classes which, owing to their uncertain social position, are being attacked by both capitalists and

Novel Commercial Society Inaugurated

Professor Sugars Directing Spirit Of New Spanish Club

A new McGill club hopes to lead the way to a newer and closer understanding between this university and the great Spanish-speaking countries is projected. With Professor Sugars as their directing spirit a number of Commerce students have proposed the formation of a Spanish Club at McGill.

One idea of the club will be to custom the ears of the students to the spoken Spanish word. The other main object is to enable a group to gather and meet the representatives of the Spanish colony in Montreal. Distinguished members of this group from outside the university promised to collaborate to help make the club a success.

Many of these have interesting facts to relate about their countries. Some of them have lantern-slides and pictures which they have promised to exhibit during the season, adding greatly to the interest of the meetings.

Anyone at McGill, particularly those who have "lived" in Spanish-speaking countries, is urged to join the club. The year's program will be discussed at the preliminary meeting which will be held in the Union grill-room next Tuesday.

Dr. Lomer Arranges Exhibit

The present Exhibit of photographs and literature of the recent Total Eclipse as displayed in the Redpath Library is mainly the work of Dr. Lomer, who arranged and collected most of the material. Some contributions were made by Professor A. V. Douglas.

Pleasure; Duty

AMONG the many binding chains which a man has fashioned in self-punishment is that rusty, albeit heavy one, whose ominous clanking is often heard,—to wit, "Duty before Pleasure". Whenever inclination clashes with dull routine, whenever spontaneous desire runs foul of spontaneous rut-wallowing, this brief and ill-founded phrase rears its ugly head. And, like a good many phrases which are widely accepted, it cannot be accepted without modification.

If we bow to the general opinion that man's purpose in life is to be as happy as possible, we must realize the importance of pleasure. Life without pleasure is scarcely life—certainly life without pleasure has no excuse for being. Careless, unmixed pleasure, it is true, may eventually defeat itself. It is to avoid defeat that duty is necessary.

The superficial difference between duty and pleasure is this:—that pleasure is an end in itself, but duty is but a means to an end. Spiritual, intellectual, and physical satisfaction are all pursued for their own sake. Duty is a sterner path, followed only because it leads somewhere. To what better place could it lead than pleasure?

Perhaps in this sense duty does come before pleasure, it is often the road thither. But, do we rank them in their order of importance, pleasure stands primordial. Pleasure, as long as it means happiness, is the why and wherefore of human life; were there none of it the labour of drawing breath would be vain. Why toil to live, if we live only to toil?

Viewing the question more widely, however, there need be none but a superficial difference between pleasure and duty. If man's object is happiness, then his duty surely is to be happy. This will appear as a selfish doctrine only when "man" is construed in a narrow sense. There can be nothing selfish about desiring the happiness of mankind as a whole. That is pleasure; that is duty. It is not a duty whose sole expression is in petty rules and useless self-restraint, but a duty whose criterion is the general pleasure.

It Was Wrong

IN last Friday's Daily appeared an article which made several references to two local athletic organizations. Since then we have learned that a good many of the aspersions contained therein were not founded on fact.

We regret, therefore, if the publication of these erroneous statements has caused any annoyance or offence.

Conservatism

CONSERVATISM is one of the most desirable attributes which one can possess. But it has often been attacked, due to confusing it with hatred of change. There is, however, a very real difference between the two.

Here at McGill, we pride ourselves on being conservative, in the sense that we are not ready to be stampeded into following any innovation that comes along unless it is worthy of our support. Nor do we indulge in childish and undignified practices such as initiation, which seem hardly worthy of a serious-minded college student. But we would not like to be charged with being backward. We like to think that we are open-minded enough to accept new ideas and give them serious consideration, not blindly following tradition.

The fact remains, however, that most of us possess conservatism to such an extreme degree that it really amounts to a hatred of change, even when the change is for the better. It is really a form of mental laziness which should not be found in the young, but which nevertheless exists everywhere. We have set ways of doing things, ingrained in us, and we are too lazy to change our established habits.

Take, for instance, the case of modernized spelling. We commence to read a book by, say, Taussig, who uses the words "Thru, altho, thoroly," and the like. We find these forms of spelling very offensive; they seem to jump up and hit us in the eye. Yet this is purely because we are not used to them, and therefore find them unpleasant. According to all logic there is no reason why these forms of spelling should not be used. They are shorter and not at all ambiguous. Yet we hate to change old habits, so we do not adopt them. The same thing may be said about the metric system and many other desirable innovations. In this sense only is conservatism undesirable, and we maintain that it is a misuse of the word to call this conservatism at all.

But if by conservatism we mean a love of tradition, a dislike of new fads, a desire for stability, an insistence on upholding desirable customs, a refusal to be stampeded into changing our minds—then conservatism is one of the finest traits we can possess, and we should be proud to uphold it at all costs in the face of ridicule from thoughtless innovators.

Notes and Notes

WITH the constant urge upon students at the University not to confine all their energies to their studies, but to devote some of their spare time to some extra-curricular activity that will either be intellectually profitable or merely entertaining, the choice of the best branch to follow must often be caused for much personal debate.

Direct mental advancement comes through association with any of the study clubs, the English Literature Society, the Philosophical Club, the Labor Club, and so on. People with an artistic or creative desire have ample opportunity to give vent to these feelings through any of the departments of both the dramatic and musical clubs, but there is no direct means of allowing the student an opportunity to learn how to listen to and appreciate the higher forms of music, those wherein it differs from the ordinary concert of fancy suites, intermezzi, orchestrated songs, and the like.

Condemnation of this last branch of music would be sheer folly, since it is a necessary and important step in the education of the listener and accustoms him to the complex form of the orchestra, and its music. Likewise, jazz has its important place in the scheme of things, by expressing the speed and mood of the popular dance of the moment.

Some of the results of both these offshoots of music are of extremely high merit; take for example some of the suites, the Nutcracker, or the Peer Gynt, or some of the concert arrangements of the operatic melodies—they provide entertainment that could barely be improved upon, while as for the jazz arrangements, some of them are so clever, in spite of their alleged classic copying, as to put many a good composer of the usual music to shame. A few of the large dance orchestras—and it is a pity that there are not more like them, have a polish, a tone, and a freshness of such undeniable quality as to make them far more pleasant to listen to than many of the concert orchestras that grace our radio dinner hour programs.

The expressionist writings of the best composers, the forms known as sonatas, quartets, concertos, symphonies, etc., are a means of refreshing enjoyment that can only be best appreciated by those persons in the position to accept it. A comparison might be drawn between this music, and the best of plays presented by the best actors, under the most ideal conditions, but the reality of the stage portrait prevents a complete simile. The term "music lovers" though now in disfavor on account of the ridicule heaped upon it by the Maestro of the Cuckoo hour, is perfectly true, and is no more opprobrious than "bookworm" or "movie fan" or "radio ham."

The method of a musical listening education is now obvious: Sufficient hearing of the music one step ahead of the customary dish will advance the taste, until the peak is reached. It is preferable, however to become acquainted with the actual tone of instruments, and to learn their relations in the orchestra, whether wood, brass, string or percussion. As the listening advances, the structure of the music is followed, its melody, harmony and counterpoint, and orchestration. When the point is reached where all the jumbled themes and instrumental meanderings can be followed at the same time, that is, when all the music can be heard, the listening education is complete.

As already stated, no student, except perhaps those attending the Conservatorium, has an opportunity to acquire this taste unless he spends much more money than is usually within his means. It must be admitted, however, that the Montreal Orchestra, during its season, does permit of some such scheme, but its scope is confined. What would be desirable is a system such as is to be found in many of the European university centres, special concessions arranged, somehow or other, whereby students can attend some of the best of concerts, or at least hear some of the better performers, at a nominal cost. Montreal, in the course of a year, does get a sufficient variety of material to make such a venture successful, and some of the half-empty auditoriums would have their voids used to the best possible advantage. Some of the local impresarios would do well for their own pockets, as well as for other matters, if they considered something of this sort.

THAT Miss Ellen Ballon is the complete artist must have been the opinion of the majority of the audience at her piano recital on Sunday evening. In her playing she showed a complete subjection to the composer, submerging her spirit into his, not with so much flourish and external temperament as with a fluent technique suiting itself to the demands of the music.

The Tausig arrangement of the Bach Toccata and Fugue in D minor clings surprisingly close to the original organ arrangement, and permits a range in color, something unusual for the piano—from the rumbling basses to the jingling celestical tones that are called upon. A good part of this color range was due to Miss Ballon's handling of the instrument. She was always calm about her playing, never lost control of a single note, and drew all the singing qualities out of her instrument that it possessed.

The more one heard of the Bach, the more did one feel the marvel of the performance. This particular number seems to contain more vigour than most of the other Toccata and Fugue arrangements that are played on the concert platform, and is quite obviously far more arduous to perform properly. In spite of these difficulties, Miss Ballon lost none of the innuendoes of the composition; some parts floated out with a fairy grace, and others were hammered into a voluminous being, but never did a note come in at the wrong place, or with the wrong inflection. To the reviewer's mind, this was the piece de resistance of the evening.

One should really not discriminate, for the next number, the Schumann Sonata in G minor was no less a grand performance. But Schumann is more of the classicist, has more rules surrounding his compositions, and generally makes his compositions less attractive to the average audience. Here again Ellen Ballon's simple straightforward playing drove away the pedanticism, and made the Sonata sound like music, and not like an exercise for advanced players. Thus it was that the andantino movement contained suggestions of the later romantic writers, while the last, the dance movements, leaped forth from the piano with consistent freshness, lightness and brilliancy.

In comparison, Miss Ballon's second half of the program was light and of far less importance. The Sternberg Etude in C major was good music, and gave some opportunity for technical display. The Chopin was what we hear very often, and now that Miss Ballon has played it, coming artists this season will have to be wary before those who have heard it played so well. The A flat major Polonaise was particularly well done in all its turns of glorious melody and breathless, rhythmic, rapid fascination.

The Toccata by Alberto Jonas was a piece lost in a maze of good music. It was fortunately short, and while the artist's playing gave it some attraction, it remained of little consequence. The last program number, the Mephisto Waltz by Liszt, was, to be epigrammatic, a devilish good piece of work. While devoid of the usual blood and thunder aspect of the ruler of the lower regions, the music kept its title's suggestion in its very rapid rate, aided by the clear-cut playing of the artist. It was an evening of music.

BIG SHOT

The Biography of Scarface Bernard Shaw as told to King C. Gillette Horseley

"Who was that gorilla I seen ya with last night?" grunted Pinkford.

"That wasn't no gorilla, that was Bernard Shaw's beard," I came back.

"That's not so hot," snarled the Major.

"No, he's getting to be an old man now," I said.

"Nu, nu," he replied. "You heard that before?"

"No," I said. "It's nu's to me."

"You interviewed him, is n'cht?"

"Sure," I said. "He's already carved is n'cht in the hall of fame."

This serves to illustrate the sort of thing that is going on every day in thousands of parlors, bedrooms, and sinks, throughout the country? It serves to illustrate that they also serve who only stand and illustrate. Calling at the Irish playwright's home in the middle of a September night, I was ushered into court the next morning and charged with breaking and entering.

"How are you?" says the judge.

"Fine," I says. "Ten dollars."

I may have got the incidents mixed up a little, but it was not so much what he said as the way he said it that sent us into gales of laughter. Well, I was sentenced to ten months in goal that time, or is it pronounced gale? Damn clever, these English.

"Tell me about the time Isidore Duncan asked you to have a child with her brains and your kidney," I requested the Irish sage.

A slow smile spread itself over the Irish wit's features as he rose from a copy of his latest tour de horse, "Gats and De Gorilla" (Get it? Damn clever, these vegetarians.)

"Certainly, Mr. Horseley, certainly," assented the Irish humorist. "It was at George Rectem's old Tenth Avenue hop-joint, the Chez McGill Union Cafeteria. You may remember it."

"I've forgotten it myself," I replied. "But my gastric ulcer remembers it."

"You're telling me?" flashed the Irish dramatist, with characteristic brilliance. "Well, me and Isadore was having grilled child au gratin. There was two side dishes, brain and kidney. 'Listen,' says the hoover. 'You take brains and I'll take kidney, and we'll share a child between us. Then we can have a child with your brains and my kidney.' 'Sure,' I snapped back, 'but suppose we have the brain with my child and your kidney?'"

"You mean have the kidney with your brains and my child?" I suggested.

"Have you got a child?" queried the Irish epigrammatist.

"Have you got any brains?" I countered.

"Well, it wasn't so much what I said as the way I said it," acknowledged the Irish satirist modestly.

"What about the Gann-Longworth Fracas?" I queried.

"Well, it all be Gann when Mrs. Post used Long ten syllable Worth in her book of etiquette," jested the Irish pantaloon. "Get it? Ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha."

"Tell me about your life, Mr. Shaw," I postulated. "Give me something that I can tell my readers back in Ameriky."

The Irish reparteeist tugged my beard waggishly.

"Schnozzle," he said. "You're a washout."

"Oh, Bernard, you old wag," I said. "Do you really think so?"

Wedding bells rang in the old town that night. A few weeks later the Smith Brothers put our beards on the spot because we both slept with them outside the blankets. Shaw fled to the penthouse of Lefty Mencken, an East Side mobster. Warts Gillette, then just a young shaver working for the Federals, got him on a dope charge for peddling decks of the Apple Cart wrapped in brown paper. I was found sewn in a burlap bag under the lotion counter of a 5, 10 and 15¢ store (adv't. Joe sent me).

Voice From The Past

The Editor,

McGill Daily,

Dear Sir,

Permit me sir, as a former managing-editor of

"AND THEN I CALLED IT A DAY"

said
Mr. Picobac

"Well," said Mr. Picobac, "I think I'm entitled to a smoke."

As he settled down in his chair, though his face wore a quizzical smile, Mr. Picobac seemed more than a trifle weary. He filled his pipe with Picobac, his favourite tobacco, and surveyed the company with slow deliberation.

"Could anybody oblige a hard-working man with a match?" enquired he. "The good woman had me moving the piano after supper. This is the first smoke I've had tonight. Whew! First we tried it at one end of the parlor... Then the other end. Then opposite the door... Then cat-a-corner at the window. At last she says, 'Put it back where it always was,' she says. 'It don't look right anywhere else!'—And then, I called it a day."

Picobac tobacco is made from the pick of the burley crop produced in Canada's famous "tropic belt," on the shore of Lake Erie—cool... mild... sweet in your pipe. Try it. On sale everywhere. And don't forget, you get more tobacco for your money.

Good for making cigarettes, too.

GOLF TEAM TO LEAVE FOR QUEEN CITY TODAY

Red Golfers Entrain For Annual Tilt

Strong Squad Leaves This Afternoon For Inter-collegiate Tussle

McGILL WILL ATTEMPT TO REGAIN LOST TITLE

Golfers Will Make Bid For Trophy Relinquished Last Year

THIS coming week-end will see McGill's golf team in an attempt to wrest the Intercollegiate title from Toronto Varsity, the present holders of the crown. A hand-picked squad, chosen from amongst the outstanding exponents of the ancient Scottish pastime who participated in the recent Professor-Student tourney, will leave for the Queen City today, at 3.30 p.m., via C.P.R., to get in several days of training for the forthcoming fray. The annual contest will take place on Saturday.

The following men will make up the personnel of the team: Johnny Cagorge, this year's captain, is well qualified to lead the team. He has won several local tournaments during the year, and his golf is consistently good. Russell Ward is a low-handicap player of the Forest Hills Club of this city, and has broken 70 several times.

Costello Stands Out

Bob Costello, the outstanding golfer of the squad, last year qualified for the Canadian Amateur Golf Tournament. He ranked among the first four men at Senneville in this fall's tourney of the Province of Quebec Golf Association. Kenney Findlay, the Carleton Place, Ont., boy, is the long driver of the team. If his irons go well, he will prove a formidable opponent for the Varsity boys.

Jimmy Brodie, like Cagorge, has participated in and won several local tournaments this season. He is a steady, heady golfer. Tom Calder recently qualified for the Canadian Amateur Tournament.

The annual golf tournament was organized in 1923. Since its inception, Toronto has won the trophy six times, and McGill three. The last time the Red Linksmen were successful was in 1930. Varsity lifted the crown from Montreal in 1931, and this time the McGillians will make a determined effort to capture its second title in three years. The winning team will be awarded the Rutten Trophy, emblematic of Intercollegiate golfing supremacy.

Intercollegiate Cage Loop Opens Jan. 27

Redmen Play Varsity at Home In Curtain-Raiser

BIG SEASON AHEAD

SENIOR intercollegiate basketball will get off to an early start this season, with Varsity and McGill playing the first game in Montreal on January 27th. The Blueboys will then stop off at Kingston on their way home to meet the Tricolor on January 28th. Western will make their debut to the college cage circuit on February 4th, hooking up with the Queen City Basketeers in Toronto.

The McGill hoop stars will play one more game, against Queen's, on February 4th, before leaving for their United States invasion on Friday, February 10th, where they will meet Clarkson College on that day, and St. Lawrence University on Saturday. The Redmen will return to the intercollegiate games by acting hosts to the Western Mustangs on February 18th. The McGillians will play their final home game on the 25th against Queen's, and will terminate their schedule by meeting Western in London on March 3rd, and Varsity in Toronto the following day.

Meet Vermont Also

Apart from all these intercollegiate contests, and the two other American games, the Redmen will pay their annual visit to the University of Vermont in Burlington on December 10th. The McGill cagers have been visiting the New Englanders for the past few years and have yet to win a game. Last year, the contest was closer than any of the preceding ones, the final score reading 30-26 in the Americans' favor. The McGill cagers are as eager of beating the Vermont basketeers as they are of retaining their intercollegiate title, which they have held for the last two years.

Intermediate Rugby Squad Will Fight To Redeem Itself Tonight

Football Horizon Is Much Brighter

Injured Veterans Return To Squad; New Hope Raised

Young And Krukowski Will Bolster Battered Red Machine

WITH Coach Frank Shaughnessy back on the job last night, all was harmony again at the Field House domain. Captain Young's short appearance in uniform was the most encouraging sign of an injury-riddled camp returning to normalcy; besides the tall flying wing, Al Krukowski was in full football garb, and calling plays as of yore. These were two of the Redmen's most disheartening casualties, and now that they have been checked off, the McGillians are pointing with confidence to the Queen's battle at the end of the week.

Hammond did not dress for practice last night, as the condition of his knee did not warrant the heavy scrummaging that Coach Shaughnessy put his charges through. Nevertheless, it is generally hoped around the Field House that he will be able to play in Kingston on Saturday. Most of the other minor injuries are rapidly going into the discard, and the McGill squad should be at full strength for the game in the Limestone City.

As the C.N.R. are running a $3.00 excursion to Kingston on the day of the game, many students are expected to lend their support to the team, which will be fighting for a place among the intercollegiate football leaders.

McGill Polo Teams See Action Tonight

Squads Engage Y.M.H.A. At Latter's Home Pool

SEASON COMMENCES

AFTER two weeks of diligent practice, the revised editions of McGill's senior and junior water polo squads swing into action tonight with a doubleheader against the strong Y.M.H.A. teams. The games commence at 8.30, and as they are not McGill home games, an admission charge of 25 cents will be made.

Shapiro, Shragovitch and McLean of last season's Seconds have moved up with French, Stein and Wayland on the senior roster. Bob Shaw, stellar defenceman of the 1930 polo squad, who was kept out of play last year due to illness, has returned, and completes the senior line-up for tonight's game.

New Junior Team

This evening's fray also marks the appearance of a new junior squad—new, but not inexperienced. The practice tilts of the past few weeks have given the boys plenty of opportunity to improve their weak points, under the able direction of the coach, and they have not neglected to take advantage of this. The juniors bear some resemblance to a polo team, which is more than can usually be said of McGill's junior poloists at the beginning of a league season.

Although the poloists hope for the best in this evening's tilts, they are not overconfident, for they face strong opposition. The Y.M.H.A. seniors finished second in the league last season, and have the same team, all intact, for the coming game. In their first two games, they only managed a draw in each case, but these were against the strongest teams in the league.

The Y.M.H.A. juniors were last season's Dominion champs. However, a city league rule states that, members of a championship junior polo squad must move up to higher company in their next season of play. Coach Bruker of the "Y" has therefore had to put in, an almost entire new squad, which should put the McGill lads on a somewhat more equal basis with them.

Seniors: Wayland, goal; B. Shaw, defence; Shragovitch, defence; Shapiro, half; Stein, centre; French, forward; McLean, forward. Alternates: Smythe and Percy.

Juniors: Tessier, goal; Wilson, defence; Lyman, defence; Silverstone, half; MacLure, centre; Percy, forward; Smythe, forward. Alternates: Ripstein and Duskes.

The above men are asked to report at the Y.M.H.A. pool, corner Mt. Royal and Park Avenue, at 8.00 sharp.

Feb. 11—Queen's at Western.
Feb. 17—Western at Queen's.
Feb. 18—Western at McGill.
Feb. 25—Varsity at Western.
Feb. 25—Queen's at McGill.
Mar. 3—McGill at Western.
Mar. 4—McGill at Varsity.

English Rugger Side Meet Montreal Bank XV This Afternoon

Men In Excellent Shape To Win First Game In City League

TEAM CHANGED

IN PREPARATION for the game against the Bank of Montreal today the English Rugger team held a practice yesterday afternoon on the lower Campus. There was a good turnout and the sides were put through some tactical practice, and the composition of tomorrow's team decided.

There have been a number of changes in the line-up of the fifteen which are expected to overcome the difficulties of combination which have been one of the drawbacks to the scoring possibilities of the team. The pack is somewhat altered, chiefly through injuries, that have put Hope out of the game, and ineptitude which is responsible for the withdrawal of Montgomery. Their places in the light will be taken by Cooligan and Close who played his first game this year on Saturday. With this combination and the "three-four-one" formation which was tried out in the last game, Captain Butterfield hopes to be able to out-shove the Bank scrum and also to make full use of the advantages this formation gives the scrum-half in getting the ball away to the three.

Pack Shows Progress

The New Zealanders have used the formation with great success in the past, both for the advantage in the tight for a scrum that tends to wheel erratically, and also in that it gives the odd man, who will be Butterfield, an excellent opportunity for quick breaking to stop the opponents' attack. In general, as was shown by the form on Saturday, the McGill pack has become welded under the captain's leadership, into a compact scrum, and has also begun to work in the loose in a satisfactory fashion; a fact which has meant the scoring of numerous tries in all sides in the past, and will make an equal difference to McGill.

Gascoigne has been again put in the full-back position, but there will probably be considerable shuffling in the rest of the back division, with Rice playing centre to Wootton on the left wing, and other possible changes which have not been definitely decided; as things are, however, Wilson will be back at right centre with Graeme on his wing. Whatever happens the three line should have no difficulty in doing more than keep their end up in tomorrow's game.

Macdonald Ineligible

Macdonald and Rabnett will be playing in the two half back places, as the latter is quite in shape again after his injury on Saturday; but Macdonald will be out of the team.

C. N. R. Meet Intermediate Squad Here

McTeer's Rejuvenated Team Will Try To Upset Powerful Railmen

Important Note

All intermediate football players must be at the Union at six o'clock tonight for training table. Coach George McTeer left town early this morning, and will only return about 7.30 tonight; therefore, the entire team must be at the Stadium by 7 o'clock, and dressed in football uniform. Coach McTeer will return just before the game gets under way.

COACH George McTeer will send in a revamped line-up into tonight's match against C.N.R. at 8.15 at the Stadium. The sweeping changes are a direct result of the utter collapse of the team against Ottawa Saturday, when they were routed 30-1. The Seconds must win to remain in the rugby picture.

Changes On The Line

McTeer has run the squad through several strenuous practices since their return from Ottawa, endeavoring to correct the most obvious weaknesses apparent there. The addition of Robertson, Montgomery and Law to the line has added pep and spirit to the whole squad. The backline, in particular, is receiving the coach's attention as they suffered a severe letdown against the bustling Rangers.

The kicking of Byers has been a pleasant surprise as he suffers little in comparison with the best the league has to offer. Dikofsky and Glashan were not at their best at Ottawa, but they should return to form before the home crowd. McGill as yet have shown no power in their forward passing attack but Kenny and McLernon are quite capable of hurling some good ones at times. The Redmen are also concentrating on a defence for this play as Ottawa completed two long passes for touchdowns.

Look for Lead

C. N. R. have an opportunity to snatch first place in the league standing by defeating McGill tonight. On the other hand, a McGill victory would place all the teams under a blanket and make the race a wide-open one. And so, with much at stake for both teams, the result should be an extremely good tussle.

The game starts at 8.15 and students will only be admitted to the stands upon receipt of their student coupons. The teams will line up as follows:

C. N. R.	McGill
Fleming ..... flying wing	Carsley
Booth ..... half	Byers
Halbert ..... half	Kenny
Murphy ..... half	Dikofsky
Brown ..... quarter	McLernon
Reynolds ..... snap	Christie
Ryan ..... inside	Robertson
Noseworthy ..... inside	Howard
Hinchey ..... inside	McGregor
Wilson ..... middle	Montgomery
Miller ..... outside	Bishop
Merrifield ..... outside	Law
C. N. R. subs: Burton, Green, Scott, teams are asked to turn out and any newcomers who are interested may also attend.

REINSTATEMENT

Old men are especially requested to be on hand, and any newcomers desiring to obtain pointers will do well to come early. Jackets and masks are provided by the club. Folds, gauntlets and shoes must be furnished by the individual.

INTERFACULTY FOOTBALL

Montreal Graduates Elect New Officers

Meeting Held In Faculty Room Of Arts Building Last Night

PITTS PRESIDENT Annual Reports Presented—Nominating Committee Appointed

The fifth Annual Meeting of the Montreal Branch of the Graduates' Society took place last night in the Faculty Room of the Arts Building due to the fact that the lateness of the hour prevented the meeting to be held after the Graduates' Society meeting, last Tuesday, as is customary. The new slate of officers was presented by the Nominating Committee, headed by Dr. F. M. G. Johnson, and unanimously accepted by the meeting.

G. McL. Pitts replaced C. G. MacKinnon as president of the Society. A. S. Bruneau will fill the position of Honorary Treasurer for the course of his term. The following members will comprise the Executive Council of the Society: Mrs. A. T. Bone, Dr. Stuart Ramsey, L. N. Buzzell, W. H. Howard and A. O. McMurry.

Reports Presented The Honorary Secretary stated in his report that there had been a substantial increase in membership in the Society, during the past year and commented on several of the activities which were undertaken by the organization, in the same period of time. Dr. F. B. Gurd presented a report showing a very favorable balance, which he had reported had been handed over to the Parent Society. He stated that there was a surplus of $777.27.

Dr. F. M. G. Johnson then presented the slate of officers for the new term, which was accepted. Mr. G. McL. Pitts assumed the chair, after the retiring president had introduced him and the other members of the new executive. Dr. D. Slater Lewis then moved a vote of thanks to the retiring officers.

New Nominating Committee Professor R. E. Jamieson, James S. Cameron and George C. Draper were elected to the Nominating Committee for two years, replacing Dr. F. M. G. Johnson, E. S. MacDougall and P. P. Hutchison. An amendment to the Constitution was brought up by Mr. C. G. MacKinnon, and passed by the Society, to the effect that in future the meetings would be held on the third Tuesday in the month of October, in order not to conflict with the parent body. The meeting closed after methods were discussed to raise money for the Graduates' Society Employment Bureau and several other projects were considered to interest the Graduates in the Society. It was agreed that the entertainments put on during the past year be repeated. A vote of thanks was presented to Mr. Glasco, for his work as permanent treasurer and secretary.

Players' Club

Will the following please turn out at the Clubroom this evening at seven o'clock: Misses H. Colby, E. Bryant, A. Vercoe, M. McKay, P. Schwab, F. Jones, H. Brown, M. Miller, R. MacKenzie, M. Hill; Messrs. Harvey, MacCarthy, Wilson, Hope, T. Grier, A. Grier, E. MacDougall, J. MacDougall, Beatts, Hewitt, Peck, Carter, Schecter.

Correspondence

(Continued from page 2) fect paper it is in an ideal position to advise the C.O.T.C. how to increase its influence and importance. You sir, advise the C.O.T.C. to adopt the methods of attracting new-comers used by other college groups—methods of "quietness and good taste." I wonder that you who permitted the remark to appear on Page 1 of last Tuesday's issue in connection with a local senior rugby team (non-inter-collegiate) admit that you are even familiar with the term "good taste." In closing may I state that I am fully aware of the thankless nature of your works as chief of the "Daily." But do be reasonable, man! And if you are ever stuck for matter for your editorial column, just leave the space blank . . . even a column of jokes would be preferable but do not do anything so foolish as to ridicule the accepted advertisements in your own paper.

May I close trusting that the McGill Daily will lift herself out of the slough in which she has been wallowing for the past few weeks and hold her head high again as a worthy institution. Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain, laborers. Communism is gaining much power in China and the present regime seems utterly helpless. Due to the fact that there exists neither freedom of speech or of the press, the only manner of self-expression could be that of an uprising. The best organized force will surely succeed, and Communism, according to the speaker, seems to be very well organized.

Sincerely yours, GEORGE BROWN, Lieut. C.O.T.C.

In view of the fact that the Chinese people are turning from their Government, and are getting tired of their old regime, conditions in general seem to favor a Communist regime in the near future. Dr. Kiang concluded that should the opportunity present itself to them, the Communists will be able to hold their own in China only so long as they can modify, as is being done in Russia, their plans to suit the prevailing conditions of the people.

Discussion Held

Following the address, general discussion on the topic was held, which was followed by an announcement of the plans to be adopted concerning the programs of future meetings. It was decided to hold meetings every second Tuesday night, and it was announced that the program of the club will not only include an increasing interest in current labor problems but also an endeavour to participate in actual concrete activity for the benefit of the cause.
